

Online orders, simplified.

Managing multiple sales
channels just got easier.

Integrated online order management for simplified deliveries.

Online delivery services are a favoured purchase method: they provide quick and easy food options for customers whilst providing businesses with additional revenue streams.

Deliverect provides a centrally managed system to hold all the client's delivery platforms, allowing focus on one system for delivery orders instead of multiple. The system shows all the customer details for the order as well as what platform they have ordered through. Deliverect then enables accurate reporting on each delivery platform's performance and revenue for the client.

The best part? It's seamlessly integrated with your Tevalis EPOS system, meaning online orders are automatically pushed to your kitchen management screens, alongside performance data on our Enterprise suite.

“When orders are taken from different delivery
platforms, Deliverect collates them, from there they are synced to Tevalis, which then pushes
the orders to our KMS
screens, allowing our team
to prepare the products straight-away. So it's a seamless integration.”

Concept turned reality; Dirty Bones is the result of two friends looking to create a unique experience. After finding the perfect basement space on High Street Kensington in 2014, paired with on-the-bone meats and live music, the word soon spread. To support the team on their journey, they required a Point of Sale suite which could adapt to their requirements, the power to manage a high volume of orders with ease and a place to centrally manage every site and their system. The result was a connected Tevalis EPOS suite paired with intuitive management tools, Business Analytics, Stock Management, Centralised Management and Cash Management.

“Deliverect saves us time and money by pushing orders through to the kitchen, giving more time back to our team on the floor, and improving customer service at sites.”
